

Archie is a timber merchant and involved with cabinet makers in Auldgirth. His historical interests in buildings and landscape, kick-started by his sawmill at Penpont, resulted in providing a large amount of timber for the Great Hall roof at Stirling Castle. McConnell wood products has placed oak in most of the largest castles in Scotland, in the new Scottish Parliament buildings, and as far afield as a church in Colorado and the Haida Takayama museum in Tokyo. Archie has acted as a consultant to the Forestry Commission and Historic Scotland, as well as a range of Scottish architects. He has a particular interest in the woodlands of Dumfries and Galloway, which has led directly to this project.